

TIMELINE

Clark County Shooting Park

- 1984: A local citizens group identifies the current Clark County Shooting Park (CCSP) site on the North end of Decatur Blvd as a preferred site and begins negotiations with BLM to build a public shooting range.
- 1996: An Off-duty Metro Police Officer, dirt biking in the desert, is accidentally shot by a target shooter. This incident prompts demands for a public shooting range.
- 2000: The City of Las Vegas appoints a citizen action team to begin planning and developing the range site.
- 2000: The Clark County Board of County Commissioners directs County officials to review the development of a shooting park based on public input.
- 2001: The Nevada Legislature passes a resolution requesting a public shooting range at the current site on North Decatur Blvd.
- 2001: The City of Las Vegas, City of North Las Vegas, City of Henderson, and the Nevada Legislature all pass resolutions in support of a public shooting range at the chosen site.
- 2001: Various environmental studies of the site are completed. No endangered species are found and the site is cleared for acquisition as a public shooting range.
- 2002: The Clark County Board of County Commission appoints the 30-member Shooting Park Advisory Committee.
- 2002-Present: Public meetings are held monthly to plan, design, operate and manage the site. Any action regarding planning, grant proposals, grant acceptance and other agreements are all approved in noticed public hearings in front of Clark County Board of County Commissioners.
- 2003: 2,900 acres of land is formally transferred from federal government to Clark County for exclusive purpose to develop a shooting park.
- 2005: The land acquired for CCSP is formally rezoned from "Rural" to "Public Facility" after public hearings are held.
- 2007-Present: Construction of the site. Begins with the waterline, extension of Decatur Blvd roadway, and the Public Module from the CCSP Mater Plan