HISTORY & FICTION COLLIDE

The Meadows
Friday, June 10th
11:15am to 12:15pm

Any history of Las Vegas will tell you that the fabulous rum-runner and offshore gambling boat baron Tony Cornero built and ran The Meadows, the first hotel/casino in Las Vegas designed for the purpose, in 1931. Patrick Gaffey, who has been researching the era, will tell you that this popular factoid is simply not true. He will read a paper he has written on the subject, explaining who really built The Meadows, which was near the intersection of Fremont, Charleston and Eastern, where Lowes is today, and reveal the conspiracy, involving the office of the District Attorney, to give The Meadows a monopoly on illegal gambling, liquor and prostitution.
