

OUR STORY

The Hollywood Recreation Center Skatepark opened in April of 2007.

It was designed by SITE Design Group and constructed by Skatepark Construction. The main design is steel based with a solid framework for both big air on the bowl to a street side experience you normally only see on the street. There is also stadium seating all around so friends can come to watch as well.

Hollywood Skatepark is definitely intermediate to advanced in difficulty, with the valleys only full-pipe at 18 feet high and a kidney pool dipping as low as 11 feet. You'll find a plethora of ledges, stairs, and other imposing, but awesome obstacles for those who can handle it. At 29,000 square feet, Hollywood Skatepark is no vacant lot. Prepare for a lot of curving obstacles as well, from arching rails to parabolic stairs and pool lips.

The park has evening lighting (pro tip: stay late and shoot a pic of the city and horizon).
