

PLAY TIME

It is important to reconnect with your child and let's them know that they are still a priority. If you are having difficulty with what to talk about or what to do during your visits, discuss this with your caseworker.

In addition, here are some ideas:

1. Let your child know that you are happy to see them. Welcome them with hugs.
2. Engage in age-appropriate activities such as board games, reading, helping with homework, card games, coloring, I-spy, or asking them what they want to play.
3. Conversations can center around what they are looking forward to in school, what they enjoy about where they are staying, fond family memories, or you can even sing songs.
4. Let your kids know that you are thinking about them, and working to make things better.
5. Any issues or concerns regarding your case or placement, discuss later with your caseworker. Remember, this time is precious and engaging in positive activities should be the focus.
6. Comfort your child and listen to them.

COMMUNICATE

Remember, talk to your caseworker or staff if you need ideas on how to have quality family time. Likewise, if there are issues or concerns, discuss them after your visit. Your child loves you and needs your full attention, so ensure that your focus is on them.

Family Visitation

A GUIDE TO SPENDING QUALITY TIME TOGETHER

Studies show that parents who visit their children on a regular basis, tend to reunify quicker than those who do not.

Family time reinforces the bond between children and parents. It reassures the child that they are still a part of the family, and that they are loved. It is important that parents and caregivers support the child before, during, and after the visit to help lessen further trauma.

GUIDELINES

Follow the guidelines for a successful visit:

1. Arrive 5-10 minutes early. Visits will start and end on time. If you are 15 minutes late, your visit may be canceled.
2. To cancel, call & speak with staff at least 1 hour before to avoid a "No Show."
3. Everyone on the visitation list must show an ID, no exceptions. If you are not on the visitation list, you will not be allowed inside.
4. Visitors to the Visitation Center must be clothed in a manner that complies with public indecency laws and that is appropriate for a public place.
5. Personal items, including phones and devices must be stored in the designated areas.
6. Food items are prohibited, with the following exceptions: store bought and sealed items. Celebration treats are allowed during visitation, and time will be allotted at the end of the visit for the item to be consumed.
7. Keep conversations child friendly and positive. No foul language or discussion of your case.
8. Any aggressive, unsafe, or inappropriate behavior will immediately end your visit.
9. You can bring a small gift, but it will remain secured until the last 10 minutes of the visit.
10. Engage in activities with your child. See suggestions in the Play Time Section.

"I'LL SEE YOU LATER!"

Ending the family time is difficult for everyone, especially your child. No one likes to see their child upset and crying. There are ways you can help to ease the stress of saying "goodbye."

Talk with your caseworker about some ideas or consider some options below:

1. Before the visit ends, prep your child with how long you have left and what will happen when it is time to go.
2. Talk about what you want to do next time.
3. Be sure to use another term for "goodbye" such as, I'll see you later, or see you soon.
4. Come up with a fun handshake that only you guys do.
5. Explain to them that you love spending time together and can't wait to see them again.
6. Although it's hard, make it quick. Drawing it out makes it harder for the child.

FOSTER PARENTS & CAREGIVERS

It is important for caregivers to build a partnership with biological parents. Parents know their children best, and children feel less apprehensive when they know there is a good relationship between the adults.

Talk to your caseworker about ideas on how to work together. Here are ways caregivers can help:

1. Provide the parent with an update of how things are going.
2. Ask the parent for help in areas where the child is struggling and their advice about what may help.
3. Remind the parent that your role is to care for their child while they focus on bettering themselves.
4. Ask the parent what they need to work together. Be sensitive to the fact that they are not caring for their child and want to be comfortable that you respect and value them as well.
5. Consider how you can help mentor the parent and model a positive and healthy relationship with their child.
6. Parents are most fearful that you want to adopt their children, so reassure them that you are only there to help.
