Clark County Nevada earns national achievement award for the Remote Multipurpose Interactive Recording Kiosk

NEVADA – Clark County has been recognized with an Achievement Award from the National Association of Counties (NACo). The awards honor innovative, effective county government programs that strengthen services for residents.

NACo recognized the Remote Multipurpose Interactive Recording Kiosk, in the Information Technology category provides the constituents with a quick and easy process to retrieve copies, scan and record property and land records from a remote location.

“The Remote Multipurpose Interactive Recording Kiosk is the state-of-the-art technology by providing a cost-effective measure to reach our customer base within proximity of their homes and businesses. By expanding these services, it reduces wait time for customers and manages crowd control,” said Clark County Recorder Debbie Conway. “Our goal is to place these Kiosk in various districts throughout Clark County, Nevada for citizens to receive these services without driving to the downtown area.”

NACo President Gary Moore said, “Over the past year, county officials and frontline employees have demonstrated bold, inspirational leadership. This year’s Achievement Award winning programs illustrate the innovative ways counties build healthy, safe and vibrant communities across America.”

Nationally, awards are given in 18 different categories that reflect the vast, comprehensive services counties provide. The categories include children and youth, criminal justice and public safety, county administration, information technology, health, civic engagement and many more.

Started in 1970, NACo’s annual Achievement Awards program is designed to recognize county government innovations. Each nominee is judged on its own merits and not against other applications received.
